Brandt Positioning Technology Introduces Engineered Services

Brandt Positioning Technology's new Engineered Services is dedicated to keeping our customers productive and profitable. Engineered Services features specialized customer support and training experts for all products supplied by the Positioning Technology Division. This line of products includes survey grade GPS, conventional survey equipment and supplies, laser scanners, mobile laser scanners, machine control, and precision agriculture equipment.

Our dedicated team of service professionals offer support related to software issues and firmware issues as well as provide training for the proper use of Topcon equipment and technology.

Bob Scholte, Manager of Engineered Services, brings 40 years of experience to Brandt having previously worked in several survey industries including the areas of construction, DTM modeling, photo mapping, cadastral, and control. His team also holds a wealth of experience in software and design, and numerous years in equipment repair and technical support.
